Late reports from Washington place the government expenditures for the year just closed at approximately $6,750,000,000.00. This means a per capita expenditure of a little over $67.00. Have you aided the government to that extent?

TRAINING LITTLE CITIZENS

Teaching Thrift to Children
By Charlotte R. Eldridge, Savings Division, U. S. Treasury Department
The parents and teachers of every child wish him to have the benefit of greater advantages than they have had. That is one of the reasons why parents often make great personal sacrifices to educate their children for more congenial work than they themselves have enjoyed and interest in his pupils is one of the few compensations for the trials and insufficient financial returns of a teacher's career.

To make the principles of thrift effective to the child, they must be put into constant practice both at home and in school and must have a direct connection with his daily life.

Every educator realizes the tremendous value of teaching thrift and industry to little children both for their immediate benefit and in anticipation of their future success. Parents who have not had a training in personal economy are anxious to have their children realize that the practice of thrift and an appreciation for the value of money are essential to success and self respect. Thrift principles enter into every relationship and problem of daily life.

Training in economy is equally necessary for the child of parents in poor or moderate circumstances and for those who are rich. In our complex American life it is possible that the poor child of today may be the rich man or woman of tomorrow, and that the child born with a silver spoon in his mouth may sometime be thrown upon his resources.

It is never too early in a child's training to begin the teaching and practice of thrift. Tales of the habits of animals and insects furnish many examples of this quality. The simple story of the red squirrel will interest any child. Tell him that before cold weather begins the red squirrel builds a comfortable and durable home, that during the summer and fall he gathers nuts and acorns to provide food for the winter time when snow covers the ground. Contrast the habits of the spendthrift rabbit, who saves nothing and who consequently suffers from hunger.

The thrift and enterprise of the bee and the ant may be contrasted with the laziness of the grasshopper and the butterfly. The Book of Proverbs and Aesop's Fables contain many a story which shows the stupidity of extravagance and laziness.

Thrift may also be taught by the careful use of materials, in the school room by economy in handling chalk, clay, paper and other articles, and in the home by careful use of furniture and by the elimination of waste in household necessities such as food, fuel and light.

In every walk through the streets and from school, material for consideration presents itself. The example of the fire department, a source of interest to every child, may be used to show how loss of life and property is prevented. The public can for rubbish are another public economy, for by their use we decrease the duties of the street-sweeper.

Efficiency is Acquired Information

WHAT DO YOU KNOW? Recently many magazines have been printing series of questions that the average American should be able to answer readily. Intelligence tests were adopted in the United States Army, and are rapidly being introduced into our public school systems. Many of us, when confronted with these tests, are surprised to find that WE DO NOT KNOW AS MUCH AS WE THOUGHT WE DID. We may have a general idea, but not a definite knowledge.

The means of practicing the principles of thrift are numerous. Children may be encouraged to buy the government Thrift Stamps issued by the United States Treasury, or to have accounts in Postal or Savings Banks. Through these channels the systematic saving of money may be brought home to the child in an attractive and profitable way, and the sums so saved conserved and invested. Americans have been called a nation of economic illiterates. They are spendthrifts by habit. It may not be possible to eradicate the vice of extravagance in this present generation, but it can be stamped out of the boys and girls of the future by continued instruction.

The influence of economy is far-reaching, and instruction in thrift is a personal, a municipal, and a patriotic duty which both parents and teachers owe to the children, the community, and the country.
